

General Consultation Service

WHAT: A General Consultation outlines and interprets the next steps that are essential to successfully carrying out a building program. It provides a time schedule and indicates the financial capacity of the congregation. An initial General Consultation is a prerequisite to other Church Extension services and is provided without cost.

WHO: Participants are representative leaders of the church and a staff representative from Church Extension.

WHEN: The earlier in the process the better!

The first consultation should be scheduled:

- As soon as the official board has recognized that a building program may be needed; and,
- Prior to the creation of the necessary organization. Generally, several consultations occur during a building program.

HOW: To arrange a General Consultation:

- The official board takes formal action inviting Church Extension to send a representative for consultation;
- The officers of the board fill out the "Request for General Consultation" form and "General Consultation Information Sheet" (both forms on reverse side), and forward to Church Extension;
- Church Extension then schedules the consultation and advises the congregation of the date. Visits normally take place within 90 days after the request is received.
